DEALING WITH DIVERSITY
Thematic Interpretation on “Defending Islam”

Abstract
Modern Indonesian had featured by two overlapping terms ‘Defending Religion’ and ‘Defending Islam’. Both are similar and popular term during the light of Islamic resurgence in the post-reformation era. As the term emerged publicly, religious discourse and debate concerning on the term are inevitable. The term, problematically, used by the particular group to legitimate numerous political actions, escalated the number of religious blasphemy. Surely, Muslims are obligated to defend Islam, but Islamic teaching also encourages the Muslim to respect communal-pluralistic society. By employing a thematic approach, this paper then argues that the idea of ‘defending religion’ should be revisited. Based on the occasion of revelation, the collected verses initially considered as an appeal to do “justice” (ʽadl), fight against the repressive community, persecution, displacement, and any outraged acts. Through tracing the occasion of revelation, this paper also argued that the idea of “defending religion” has also much to do with the idea of “defending diversity” in the context of pluralistic society.

A. Introduction

By the end of 2016, Indonesia was shocked by a massive rally in Jakarta demanding the persecution of Basuki Tjahaja Purnama (well known as Ahok). He is a Chinese Christian who was allegedly charged for religious blasphemy following his controversial statement on-QS 5:51\(^1\). The rally which was mainly mobilized by the FPI (Front Pembela Islam/ Islamic Defender Front) was labeled by its participants as bela agama/ Islam (defending religion/ Islam). This self-labeling is in itself problematic as it could potentially lead to increasing religious sentiments within the relationship between Muslims and Non-Muslims in Indonesia.

Indeed, Indonesian citizens in the post-Suharto regime had been experiencing massive transformation, from civil Islam reformation with a vibrant democratic government to the resurgence and re-emergence of religious militant groups\(^2\). The transformation in particular marked with the shift of religious authority, revivalism, exclusivism, violence, and the strong persistence of reformist group featured with street justice and -law\(^3\). Unlike common - street rallies that fight - against corruption, poverty, and economic issues, the current trend of rallies have -embraced primordial issues of religiosity and ethnicity. In addition, this act is by arguing for defending Islam. As Wilson\(^4\) says, the embrace and elevation of Islam by such an exclusive and conservative Islamic militant groups has been a new feature of Indonesia’s post-Suharto democracy.

Both exclusivism and conservatism theologically are not only challenging the state authority and threatening the very foundations of religious life such diversity, but also affected negatively to the pluralistic society of Indonesian Muslim. Indeed, exclusivism is not only the wrong path for a pluralistic society, but also affected the image of good Muslim\(^5\). Within this study, the resurgence of conservative groups with such truth claim is regarded as the ‘antitheses’ of ‘religious diversity’ and unfortunately, these groups also legitimate their acts mainly based on the Qur’an. Religious conservatism had seen by many scholars such as

Hunter cited by Halev as an exclusive belief in the transcendental authority. People of this view believe and assume that their religions are the only true and the people differ from them would be considered as simply false. Hence, the conservatism points out that such hierarchical-binary idea of Muslim and non-Muslim, insider and outsider, friend and enemy, Muslim-kafir (infidel) are significantly important. As the idea went out and widespread, Muslim community then became more vulnerable in facing diversity.

This paper then scales up that such turmoil situation was triggered by the conservative ideas based on a particular understanding of the Qur’an. Nevertheless, this paper also recognized that such conservatism has many factors such as politic upheaval and sociological disruption (but that is another issue). Further, as the verses of ‘defending religion’ were potentially misrepresented and “misused”, it is necessary to relook at the paradigmatic chain that leads to unconstructive-harmful interpretation and reconstruct an understanding for respecting religious life and diversity. Therefore, this paper deals with two issues, namely the problem of Qur’anic exegesis in understanding ‘defending Islam’ and religious diversity. In interpreting religious diversity, scholars like Appadurai and James give a narration that mono-religious community has to rewrite the narration about solidarity and equal citizenship between and among religious communities. The keyword given to understand this term is social change, which concerns an equal demographic stratification via religion, pluralistic and recognizing the beliefs of others.

As we began to address some problematic interpretation of the term “defending religion” (read: defending Islam), it is helpful to trace the historical term of “defending religion” in contemporary use and unpack the meaning based on thematic exegesis critically. This approach is useful to present the wide picture of the term and see the link that connecting one verse to another verse.

Further, the point of departure of this paper is concerning the idea that religious texts may be interpreted based on contemporary context. This is not only matter of interpretation, but also building a progressive discourse to reckon and appreciate the pluralistic society as the fact of modern context. Saed mentioned that reinterpreting the Qur’anic teaching nowadays is definitely important since today situation may be different from the archaic Arabian context.

Indeed, the idea such particular interpretation is somehow misleading and inappropriate. This paper then proposed a question of how do the Muslim scholars interpret the term “defending Islam” and how significant the reinterpretation of verses in respecting the idea of religious diversity.

B. Thematic Exegesis and Religious Diversity

Dealing with the term “defending religion” well-meaning “defending Islam”, this paper employs two different strands in understanding the verses; namely thematic approach of the Qur’an and then reconstructing the interpretation based on the idea of respecting diversity. The thematic approach or what so called as (موضوعي/maudhūi) is one of the powerfullens to unpack and undress the specific issues in the Qur’an since it rejuvenates into account the actual problem through deepening the analysis thematically. In addition, thematic interpretation pointed out specific issues as a matter of discourse. The term موضوعي per se was kind of noun passive participle (isim mafūl/اسم مفعول) derived from the past tense verb (fi’il mādi - فعل الماض - wadha’ayadha’u) which means to establish, institute, invent, compose and compile and etc. Therefore the closest meaning of موضوعي literally is gathering-composing-compiling the subject into one discourse based on a specific theme. Terminologically, موضوعي is an approach to interpret the Qur’an by collecting and gathering the similar verse or based on the specific theme that has similar issues regardless the location or chapters in the Qur’an, time of revelation and the occasions of revelation (“asbāb al-nuzūl”). Therefore this approach required an explanation not only based on the text and scholar explanations per se, but also on the historical context.

According to al-Farmāwi, there are several important steps in this approach. These areby selecting the specific theme or the issues, gathering-compiling the related verses, organizing the verse based on the time of revelation, the occasion of revelation, considering the prophetic tradition, and the last is analyzing and discussing the related verses comprehensively. In an attempt to grab a wider explanation, this paper was also aware on the historical context of each the verse and explaining how the classical scholars xplicate and locate the verse based on the surrounding context.

11 Mandzur ibnu: Lisanul Arab chapter Nun

Dealing with thematic interpretation is diversity. This point is significant to understand the pluralistic societies who hold common identity, historical barrier and reunite societies into one strong engagement and citizenship. Nevertheless, the idea about diversity itself had been rooted in Muhammad’s life during his prophetic era. Contemporarily there are a lot of scholars linked the Qur’anic exegesis with diversity ideas. Yet, focusing on the thematic exegesis of ‘defending religion’ and in the context of Indonesia is still rare. As a contemporary analysis, this paper employs the idea from Bikhu Parekh idea on the collective right of multicultural-pluralistic society. He mentioned that within communal life, multicultural society needs to uphold their collective identity as a common barrier. The barrier may come from shared historical values or long-term interest in surviving the most valuable aspect of their communal life. In this point, Halev added that diversity is multiple dialogs between and among the group with different multiple point of view. Hence, still in the context of pluralistic society, a person may have the right to convey his/her idea publicly as part of the individual right and also respect the other right appropriately.

C. Occasion of Revelation

The terms “Defending religion” or ‘Defending Islam’ per se do not occur explicitly in the Qur’an and there is no sustained discussion of its origin. However, the people who do the act of “Defending religion” cited the related-resemblance verses to legitimate the action. As a statement by Alwi Alatas who stated that the root of “Defending Islam” is (QS 61:14) that obligate a Muslim to defend their religion. Indeed, as he continued that the obligation was God’s mandatory instead of the political act or any religious-political sentiment. The obligation as he stated is also to defend the Qur’an Al-Ma’idah (5:51) that warns Muslims not to take Jews or Christians as awliyā’, which commonly translated as friends, allies, guardians, or helpers. However, as the act went by, the cited verses to defend religion are likely having phrases such as “Tanṣūrū Allāh”, “anṣar Allāh”, “yanṣūrū Allāh”, yanṣūrū hu”. The phrases are loosely translated as “to give victory of Allah, to save Allah, to make triumph for Allah”.

15 Jeff Spinner-Halev, Surviving Diversity, Religion and Democratic Citizenship The Johns Hopkins University Press, 2000
The phrase consists of two root words with consonant n/s/r as verb and Allah as a proper noun.

The idea of ‘defending Allah’ in modern practice then developed and translated into the idea of ‘defending religion’ and ‘defending Islam’. This paper then considers the practice as a phenomenon of overlapping understanding in which the people gather the words “Allah”, “Islam” and ”religion” into one package. The unintended consequence of this overlapping term is the superiority of Muslim over another religious group socially.

Based on this phenomenon, this paper then gathered some phrases as a term in the related verses. By using the abovementioned root words of n/s/r and the help of ‘Qur’an digital’, this paper then found several verses, they are:

1. Ye who believe! If ye help Allah, He will help you and will make your foothold firm. (QS. Muḥammad/47: 7) (En. Pictall, transliteration.org)17.

2. Those who have been driven from their homes unjustly only because they said: Our Lord is Allah - For had it not been for Allah’s repelling some men by means of others, cloisters and churches and oratories and mosques, wherein the name of Allah is oft mentioned, would assuredly have been pulled down. Verily Allah helpeth one who helpeth Him. Lo! Allah is Strong. (QS. al-Ḥajj/22: 40)

We verily sent Our messengers with clear proofs, and revealed with them the Scripture and the Balance, that mankind may observe right measure; and He revealed iron, wherein is mighty power and (many) uses for mankind, and that Allah may know him who helpeth Him and His messengers, though unseen. Lo! Allah is Strong, Almighty. (QS. al-Ḥadīd/57: 25)

(And it is) for the poor fugitives who have been driven out from their homes and their belongings, who seek bounty from Allah and help Allah and His messenger. They are the loyal). (QS. al-Hasyr/59: 8)

“ye who believe! Be Allah's helpers, even as Jesus son of Mary said unto the disciples: Who are my helpers for Allah? They said: We are Allah's helpers. And a party of the Children of Israel believed while a party disbelieved. Then We strengthened those who believed against their foe, and they became the uppermost”. (QS As-Saf/61:14)

Focusing on the specific term, the abovementioned will be discussed according to the occasion of revelation, the type of the chapter and then followed with the relation between one verse to another.

First is QS: Muhammad/47:7 that known also as Al-Qitāl or Allazīna Kafarū. The type of this chapter is Madāniyah accordingtolbn Abbās19. According to Qurthubī20, the revelation of this chapter is based on the difficult situation-condition in which the non-Muslim Mecca (kufār Makkah) had strongly persecuted and also displaced the prophet and his companions from their own homeland. In addition, Sihab21 mentioned that scholars agree the verses on this chapter emphasize defending the right and preventing the persecution. This verse is the early verse that obligates Muslim to do qitāl against the non-believer Mecca. Therefore, the designation of this chapter is Al-Qitāl. This chapter also implies an appeal to fight against the outrage unbeliever, to maintain the religion and to fight against persecution.

Second is (QS. al-Ḥajj/22: 40), this chapter is Makiyyah according to Ibn Abbās and Mujahid, but Madāniyyah according to other ulama. Thus, the chapter called Mukhthalath (the mixed chapter in the revelation). The mufassirūn (tafsîr scholars) stated that the non-believer of Mecca continuously persecuted the prophet’s companion such as beating and oppressing. The companions reported to the prophet and he said: “اصبروا فإني لم أومر بالقتال” (be passion, I haven’t obligated to fight). Then the prophet Muhammad migrated to Medina and the verse revealed. This is the first verse allowing the prophet to fight against the non-believer. According to Mujāhid, this verse revealed to the Muslim Mecca who prohibited by the non-believer to migrate in Medina in the early of Islam.

The redaction is

وَلَيْ نُصُرْنَ اللَّهُ مَنْ يَنْصُرُهُ

“Allah pastiakanmenolong orang-orang yang menolong (agama)-Nya” - “Verily Allah helpeth one who helpeth Him”

Third is (QS. al-Ḥadīd/57: 25), a chapter that according to Ibn Abbās and the majority (jumhur) is Madāniyyah. Ibn Abbās mentioned that this chapter is explaining that God knows everything and any human attention. This verse revealed to inform the Muslim that Allah knows their intention when they help Allah and His prophet. The redaction is

وَلِيَعْلَمَ اللَّهُ مَنْ يَنْصُرُهُ وَرُسُلُهُ

Allah mengetahuisiapa yang menolong (agama)-Nya dan rasul-rasul-Nya and that Allah may know him who helpeth Him and His messengers

Fourth, (QS. al-Ḥasyr/59: 8) well known also as Banî an-Nadhîr. This chapter is Madaniyyah according to the majority. The occasion of revelation according to many scholars: when the prophet arrived in Medina, he became the leader of Arabian tribes, Christian community, and Jewish clan. In Medina, the prophet has a pledge between the prophet and the tribes in Medina, one of them is Banî an-Nadhîr (Jewish clan). The pledge is an agreement to live peacefully. After the battle of Badar, Banî an-Nadhîr showed hostility against the prophet and they allied with the non-believer of Quraish to fight against the prophet. They were also spying the activity of the Muslim community in Medina. The prophet then exiled them out of Medina. They brought their belonging but also leave behind their property.\textsuperscript{28} The redaction is

\end{quotation}

\textit{Fifth is}(QS As-Saf/61:14) well known as “Īsā” or “Al-Ḥawâriyyûn”. This chapter is \textit{Madâniyyah} according to majority and \textit{Makiyyah} according to Ibn Abbâs\textsuperscript{29}. After the battle of Badar, It is narrated that: the verse revealed to inform the companion of the prophet Muhammad that Allah appreciates the Muslims who fight for defending Allah, likewise the Hawâriyîn (the follower of Isa) who defend for Allah.\textsuperscript{30} The redaction is

\begin{quotation}
Jadilah kamu penolong (Agama) Allah- Be Allah's helpers
\end{quotation}

From the explanation of related verses above, occasion of revelation, \textit{first}, it can be seen that the phrase ‘\textit{Tanşurū Allâh}’ translated in English as ‘help Allah’ and translated in Bahasa as “menolong (agama) Allah”. The shifting translation from ‘helping Allah’ to “helping (religion) of Allah” in Bahasa, and commonly used by the mob as “helping Islam” is an overlapping term. Meaning, the people commonly use “Allah” and “religion of Allah” into one package. \textit{Secondly}, most of the chapters of the verses are \textit{Madâniyyah}. A categorization marked by the emigration of the prophet to Medina after long persecution in his own homeland, Mecca. \textit{Third} based on the occasion of revelation it is mentioned the obligation to defending Allah ‘religion’ from non-believer, an obligation to fight against any persecution, displacements and any inhuman acts and the fighting is allowed only for certain reasons, such as against the group that breaking the pledge of communal life, betrayal, against inhuman-outraged practice, protecting the basic right of religious community in performing their belief. Otherwise, based on the occasion of revelation, the obligation of helping, well-meaning defending Allah religion through certain actions of war, jihâd and etc, are not clearly mentioned in the peaceful religious community.

D. Classical Scholars’ View on ‘Defending religion’

Concerning on the problematic idea of ‘Defending religion’, this paper also considering classical scholars views as an account of discussion: Sayyid Quthb in his book entitled Fi Zilâlil Qur’an explained the (QS Muhammad: 07) as an obligation of doing jihâd. He stated that the clause ‘in tanşurū Allāh’ has an implication of doing jihâd for Allah. Indeed, Sayyid Quthb linked the phrase ‘in tanşurū Allāh’ with the related verse of QS, Muhammad:07

"وَالذِّينَ قُتِلُوا فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ فَلَا يُضِلُّ عَمَلَهُمُ " (Qur’an English translation by Pictall).

Sayyid Quthb noted that the notion of nşr (help) and qutilû (slain) was to Allah. Indeed, he also noted that there is no action accepted for jihad and qital (war) but only because of Allah and defending the Syariah of Allah.31 Interpreting the meaning of nşr (help) as an action of jihad had also proposed by Qurthubî. He mentioned that the action of tanşurû has much to do with the narration of occasion of revelation in which the non-believer of Mecca continuously persecuted the prophet and his companions. He linked the verse “QS Muhammad: 07” with the previous verses about qitâl (battle) in the realm of Allah, such as QS 47:01 saying that “Those who disbelieve and turn (men) from the way of Allah. He rendereth their actions vain”32. In addition, he said that the term tanşurû Allāh in practice is by defending His prophet, both defending Allah and prophet has one meaning33.

Further At-Thabârî also explained the verse of QSal-Ḥajj/22: 40 as Allah will help those who help His (religion) in the battle and those who struggle for the glory of Allah against His enemies. Indeed, the meaning of helping Allah is by jihâd (an effort to do something either by war or anything else) and raising the glory of His syariah.34 Likewise Thabârî, Qurthubî also mentioned the verse is linked with the condition of the Prophet and his companions that continuously persecuted by the non-believers of Mecca. The outraged acts and persecution had threatened the Muslim community in Mecca. The outraged acts and persecution had threatened the Muslim community in Mecca. From the explanation of QS 47:07 and QS, 22:40, it can be seen that classical scholars seem to agree that the meaning of ‘helping Allah’ is by defending Islam, Muslim, and Syariah in particular. However, the act of ‘defending’ also linked with the condition of persecution over the prophet and his companions when he was in Mecca.

Unlike QS: Muhammad/47: 07 and al-Ḥajj/22:40, QS. The term “ yansūrū” in the al-Ḥasyr (59) : 8 has a different occasion of revelation. The verse linked about fā’i (spoil of war) that was also for the poor people displaced from their home and migrated to Medina as the refuge. According to Ibnu Kaṣīr and ‘Alī al-Ṣābūnī, this verse explained about the condition of deprived people, exiled from their home, underprivileged within the community, and crossing the town as a refugee. According to the majority of scholars, this group is the first group migrated to Medina. These groups of people were fighting against the brutal community in Mecca and in seeking the bounty from Allah. They were exiled from their home and migrate to Medina as a refuge. As the Qur’ān mentions that what they did was honorable according to Allah, they are the Muhājirin. Further, Ibnu Kaṣīr also linked the verse with the occasion of revelation in which Banī an-Nadhîr, Jews clan in Medina, had broken the pledge and was in alliance with non-believer Quraish to fight against the prophet. Previously, it is narrated that before the coming of the Prophet, Jews tribes such as Banī an-Nadhîr, Bani Qainuqa’ and Bani Quraizhah were used to be in clash with the Arab tribes such as Aus and Khazraj. After the prophet migrated to Medina, became the leader and won in the battle of Badar, Banī an-Nadhîr was in alliance with non-believer Quraish to slay the prophet, spying and betraying the Muslim in Medina. Considering Banī an-Nadhîr as a malicious clan, the prophet then exiled them out of Medina; they went out of Medina and left behind their ruined property.

Further, although QS. al-Ḥasyr (59) and the two previous verses have different occasions of revelation, but both of them have something in common; that is an obligation to fight for Allah, denounce betrayal for a peaceful life, defend Islam and protect Muslim community. This obligation also encouraged all Muslim individually and communally to defending Allah and His prophet by means of jihād and defending Muslim from any persecution, discrimination and the excess from the outraged acts.

Similar to the abovementioned verses is QS. al-Hadid (57) : 25

وَلِيَعْلَمَ اللَّهُ مَنْ يَنْصُرُهُ وَرُسُلَهُ بِِلْغَيْبِ

\textit{Meaning “and that Allah may know him who helpeth Him and His messengers, though unseen. Lo! Allah is Strong”} and (QS As-Saf/61:14) narrated”

يََٓأَي ُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَءَامَنُواْ كُون ُوأاْ أَنصَارَ ٱللََِّّ كَمَا قَالَ عِيسَا ٱببۡنُ مَربۡيََ لِلبۡحَوَارِيِّ ۧنَ مَنبۡ أَنصَارِيأ إِلََ ٱللََِّّ

“ye who believe! Be Allah’s helpers, even as Jesus son of Mary said unto the disciples: Who are my helpers for Allah? They said: We are Allah’s helpers”

The pinpoint of these verses are an encouragement for Muslim to defend Allah and as the declaration that the prophet Muhammad brings about the right promise. These are by narrating the glory of Muslim in the war of Badar and the story of Hawāriyīn (the follower of Isa) as those who help Allah. Indeed, this verse also pointed out that Allah will help those who fight for the glory of Allah although Allah needs no help from a human being. Qurthubī in this regard explained that these verses have much to do with the prophet Muhammad who brings about clear evidence (البينت) on the glory of Allah. That Allah obligated human being to do jihād for Allah was solely to examine the faith of Muslim.\footnote{Ibnu Katsir, Tafsir al-Qur’an al-Adzim, terj. M. Abdul Ghoffar (Bogor: Pustaka Imam Syafi’i, 2005), hlm. 64-65.}

Further, according to Wahbah Zuhaili, the meaning of jihād is a maximum effort to defend religion by any means from the violation of the non-believers..\footnote{Mukharis, “Jihad dan Terorisme”, dalam Sahiron Syamsuddin (editor), Al-Qur’an dan Isu-Isu Kontemporer, (Yogyakarta: Elsaq Press, 2011), hlm. 95.}

From the above interpretation, classical scholars have many things in common regarding the term of ‘Defending Allah’ or ‘Defending Islam’ and when the jihad or qitāl were allowed. First ‘defending Allah’ or ‘Islam’ is an obligation for Muslim endangered by a non-believer. The mufassirun were linked their interpretation with the occasion of revelation in which the Muslim Mecca were persecuted by non-believer repressive community as in QS
Muhammad, 47:7 and Al-Hajj 22:40. Therefore the verse is in an appeal for Muslim to do qitāl for Allah.

Secondly, the act of defending Islam is allowed when the non-believers were in alliance to fight against Islam, breaking the pledge for a peaceful life with the Muslim community. Such as in the case of Bani Nadzir that made an agreement to live peacefully with the Muslim community. However then, they betrayed the agreement and revolt against the Muslim. The significance of the verse is that Muslim also obligated to fight against a malicious community that endangers the Muslim. The spoil of war is for those who had been displaced from their home and migrate to Medina as a refuge. The third is about encouragement to ‘defend Allah’ as in QS. Al-Hadid (57): 25. The scholars have similar views that the verse is about a narrative story about the prophet and his companion. As it is narrative, the Muslim may take a lesson that Allah will help those who ‘defend Allah’ and His prophet.

E. The Verses in Indonesian Context

From the time and occasion of revelation, prophetic tradition, and classical scholars’ view on the thematic verses above; it may be noted that the term “defending Islam” was strongly tied to a historical event in the prophetic era. The term, historically, refers to an unstable condition where the Muslim faced discrimination and persecution in Mecca, betrayal in Medina, and battle after battle. The continuous violent against the first Muslims and their precarious situation after the emigration to Medina, Allah revealed the verse of jihad by allowing Muslim to do war and to slay (A. qitāl) in term of ‘defending Allah’.

However, the term thematically showed about different stage-level of ‘defending Allah’ and His religion, Islam. Surely, Allah obligated the Muslim to do “defend” for Him, but according to the verses QS 47:7 and QS 22:40 is in the certain categories, such as slaying (A. qitāl) is only in the specific cases. Further, the case of exiling Jewish clans is in other cases too, the depiction in QS 59:8, clearly prompted the Muslim to avoid betrayal. In addition, the meaning of “helping Allah” is also about encouragement for Muslim to defend Allah likewise the follower of Ïsa did as mentioned in QS 57:25. Thus, the idea of defending Allah was still tied to certain conditions where the Muslims live in. Thus, the significant meaning of “helping Allah” in the age of the prophet had experienced a diachronic process and it was changed over time of prophet-hood.
Further, to reinterpret the verses thematically and based on diversity view, this paper then looks at the depiction of communities during the era of early prophethood. Tabari explained that the population of Muslim in Medina (Ancient Arabic. “Yathrib”) during the early Islam was still a minority and low in number. Unlike Mecca that predominantly inhabited by pagan Arab, Medina inhabited by plural societies around the Arabian Peninsula. Medina, geographically, is the hub for the economic life of Arab. Many traders, merchants, religious leaders, go around and inhabited the city. Among of them are Jewish clans such as Bani Qainuqa’, Bani Nadhir and Bani Quraiddah, Arab tribes such as Aus and Khazraj, Christian community, and a small number of pagans such as sābi’ūn⁴¹ and etc. As the Arab tribes, mostly Aus and Khazraj, and Jewish clans were often in conflict, the prophet Muhammad together with the religious leaders then established what so called as Medina charter (A. ṣahīfat al-madinah), a pledge that tied all medina societies into one engaged citizen (A. ummah.). They shared citizenship values, but still maintained their boundaries and identities. From this depiction, it can be seen that Medina during the early age of Islam is kind of pluralistic city with diverse communities. All religious communities are living side aside without any serious grudge, the conflict happened shortly after the betrayal of Jews community. Therefore, if we pay attention to the occasion of revelation and the chronological order of Q 47:7 and such verses as Q 22:40, and Q 57:25, and Q 59:8, we will find that the idea of ‘defending religion’ was allowed in certain cases, but ‘defending religion’ through certain acts in the peaceful and pluralistic society may be avoided.

Taking a lesson from the early Muslim in Medina where the prophet Muhammad became a leader of pluralistic society, this paper argues that community in the prophetic age also bears a change socially, culturally and religiously in which the demography, and topography shows about equal citizenship via religion. Further, this paper also finds similarities between the Muslim in Medina in the past and Muslim in Indonesia in the present. Similar to Medina in the early age of Islam, Indonesian citizens bear common historical-cultural barriers. Regardless the religion then, all Indonesian citizens are equal and tied by one single national motto of unity in diversity (Snkrt. Bhineka Tunggal Ika). This foundation emphasized that all citizens should respect other religions and cultures as one notion and maintaining religious diversity.

As the idea of unity in diversity was perhaps the most significant promise in the context of Indonesia, the Qur’an also offers the idea of respecting religious diversity. By tracing the idea of ‘defending religion’ in the abovementioned verses, this paper argues that the practice of ‘defending religion’ will always change over time due to the surrounded situation and the communities. The Qur’an obligated the Muslim to do defense in the context of repressive communities, overcome persecution and discrimination. Nevertheless, the Qur’an also encouraged the Muslim to maintain social relationships in the context of peaceful societies. Nowadays, the emergence of a particular group for ‘defending religion’ by doing various intolerant actions has destroyed the good image of Muslim community in Indonesia. Therefore this paper insists that any kind of misbehave, intolerance act, and trial by a mob in practice had ruined the idea of “justice” (ʽadl) as the main idea of ‘defending religion’.

F. Concluding Remark

Along with modern-plural society where the encounter between Muslim and other religions had created vibrant pluralistic societies, Indonesian Muslim has been experiencing the emergence of religious exclusivism that brings about misbehave and social conflict. Unfortunately, as the idea widely spread, it also affected the idea of “defending Allah” as a notorious verse”.

Based on the thematic interpretation of Q 47:7, Q 22:40, Q 57:25, and Q 59:8 it can be said that the main idea of ‘defending Allah’ is establishing justice (‘adl’) between and among societies. The gathered verses mentioned above are about jihad and qital (war), as the Muslim experienced persecution in Mecca. The Muslims in Medina have a different experience and therefore the act of ‘defending Allah’ is through peaceful acts. As an effort to maintain diversity, Indonesian Muslim may take Muhammad’s life (PBUH) as an example of maintaining social relation, showing the image of good Muslim and encouraging the Muslim to do justice toward the other community.
